Former Merchant in Rochelle Killed in Accident on Sunday

M. D. Barnett, 50, Fell Asleep at Wheel of Car, Apparently

(Telegraph Special Service)
Rochelle, Sept. 15—M. D. Barnett, 50, of 1034 North Eighth street, employed by the D. J. Stewart department store in Rockford and a former Rochelle shoe merchant, was instantly killed in a head-on automobile collision on U. S. highway 51, eight and one-half miles north of Rochelle at 5:30 o'clock Sunday morning, in which accident Miss Helen Schultz, 50, and her father, E. W. Schultz, 80, of Fredericksburg, Va. were severely injured.

The latter two were brought to the Lincoln hospital here where it was reported both were suffering from severe chest injuries and cuts and gashes about the head and face, while Mr. Schultz is also under shock.

An inquest was conducted by Coroner J. C. Atkins of Forreston in Miss Schultz' hospital room, and she testified that she and her father were on their way to Madison, Wis. to visit the latter's only brother, Jesse Schultz, and had spent Saturday night at a Rochelle tourist's camp. They left Rochelle at about 5:15 Sunday morning to resume their journey north, and about eight miles north of the city, she testified, they approached a car, traveling south on the wrong side of the road, the driver of its apparently being asleep.

Sought to Avert Crash
Seeing a collision was inevitable, Miss Schultz turned her car into the southbound lane, and at the same time the driver of the southbound car, seemingly awaking suddenly, turned back into that lane, the collision resulting.

M. D. Barnett was born in Steward, Jan. 29, 1891. The son of Frank and Margaret Barnett. He was married, in 1919, to Miss Hazel Adamson of Chicago, and for ten years conducted the Brownbilt shoe store here before accepting employment with the Rockford firm.

He is survived by his widow and a daughter Helen. Funeral services will be held at the Unger funeral home here at 2:00 o'clock Tuesday afternoon, the Rev. Frank A. Campbell, pastor of the Presbyterian church, officiating. Burial will be in Steward.

Final Endeavor to Avert Nation-Wide Rail Strike Begun

Chicago, Sept. 15—(AP)—A final effort to avert a national railroad strike was started in Chicago today.

A representative of the National Railway Mediation Board met with members of the president's emergency fact-finding board in an executive session which they indicated might last for several hours.

They were to choose a time and place for the initial session of the five-man emergency board appointed by President Roosevelt Sept. 10 to investigate the issues of the colossal wage dispute between the nation's major railroads and 1,260,000 of their workers.

This emergency board, headed by Dean Wayne Lyman Morse of the University of Oregon law school, is required to report to the president within 30 days from the date of its creation. Not for 30 days after the report is made, the Railway Labor Act provides, may the 19 unions involved put a strike into effect.

Five brotherhoods of the so-called operating crafts are demanding a 30 per cent increase in basic rates of pay. Fourteen non-operating unions call for wage boosts of from 30 to 34 cents an hour.

Claim Inability to Pay
The carriers claim that union demands would cost them $900,000,000 a year, a figure far beyond their ability to pay.

As required by law, the contending parties made an attempt to negotiate an agreement, but negotiations broke down Aug. 5. Mediation was the next step. It was abandoned Sept. 5 and the mediation board sent the dispute to the White House.

In addition to Dean Morse, the president named Thomas Reed Powell, Harvard law professor; James Cummings Bonbright, professor of finance at Columbia University; Joseph Henry Williams, director of social science for the Rockefeller Foundation, and Hus-

Biggest Maneuver In History Begins In Louisiana Today

By JERRY T. BAULCH

With the Second Army in Louisiana, Sept. 15—(AP)—In a lightning invasion of Third army territory, the Second army's 130,000 troops swept through across the Red river along a 100-mile front a few hours after the biggest maneuver in the nation's history started today.

Without opposition, as Lt. Gen. Walter Krueger commanding the Third army apparently had been ordered to hold his 330,000 men in check far south of the river, mechanized legions of Lt. Gen. Ben Lear crossed at a dozen points between Shreveport and Alexandria.

The biggest push came from the north, where Maj. Gen. C. S. Scott sent his columns of tanks and armored vehicles of the First armored corps toward the Sabine river to strike directly at Krueger's western flank on the Texas border.

At the southern end of the Second army front, flexible, fast moving infantry divisions captured Alexandria, took over that city's radio station to cut off communications and then drew the Third army's attention with a furious feint at the east flank.

In the center of the line, Maj. Gen. Robert C. Richardson, Jr., moved his 75,000 men of the Seventh Army Corps across a 50-mile front from Colfax to Coushatta, using two traffic bridges and four pontoon spans floated before dawn.

The first armored division had the longest trip to the battle front, sweeping northward to cross Red river and capture Shreveport. Then Major General Bruck McGruder headed southwest for the Sabine river and the Third army's left flank.

The center of action was at Coushatta, mid-way point of the 100-mile front.
All along the jungle like shore of the river, Cossack posts were established while infantry and artillery moved into position under cover of darkness for the dawn jump-off.

Heavy Protection
At Coushatta, the protection was particularly heavy. Anti-aircraft guns commanded the river front and armored cars pointed their muzzles across the vital traffic bridge, while powerful searchlights fingered along the enemy shore.

At 5 a. m. (CST), zero hour for crossing the river, mechanized cavalry in blackout moved across Coushatta bridge, their guns primed for action. Columns on horseback followed to search along wooded shores where scout cars could not go.

Then with the first glimmer of daylight, Major General George S. Patton's Second armored division followed with columns of tanks and armored cars. A smoke screen across the river hid the operation and friendly planes hovered overhead to ward off any attacking bombers, which attempted to drop dummy bombs (sacks of flour) on river crossings. General Scott himself supervised the mechanized attack to aid Brig. Gen. Willis D. Crittenger, commander of the leading brigade.

Later infantry and artillery of the Seventh corps followed. By 9 a. m. (CST) the river was securely in Second army hands.

Risking capture, I skirted between the front line for 50 miles and saw no Third army troops, even miles south of the river.

Over Score Meet Violent Deaths In Illinois Over Saturday, Sunday

By The Associated Press

Death in various forms of violence—paced by 13 traffic fatalities—took the lives of at least 25 persons in Illinois during the week end.

An Associated Press survey showed today that, in addition to the auto crash victims, there were five suicides, four drownings, one killed in a fall, one stabbed to death and one crushed fatally.

John Paces, 65, and Kaspar Mechak, 69, both of Peoria, were killed yesterday in a head-on auto collision near Farmington. Two other men were hurt.

N. P. Schramer, 22, of Virgil, died last night in a Sycamore hospital of injuries received in auto crash west of Richardson.

Another motor accident near Petotone yesterday proved fatal for 13-year-old Raymond Majdecki of Argo. Two others were injured seriously.

Two persons were killed and five injured Saturday in a collision near Hoopole. The dead were Leonard Johnson, 75, Moline, and his daughter, Mrs. Arthur Larson, 40, Rockford.

Mrs. Gertrude Holmgren Nye, 43, deputy overseer of the Prossitt township welfare department, was killed Saturday night in an auto collision on an Illinois river bridge at Peoria. Six others were injured.

Leaders Call For Speedy Action On Big Revenue Bill

Members of Congress Return After An Extended Holiday

Washington, Sept. 15—(AP)—Members of congress got back on the job today after an extended legislative holiday, and leaders called for fast action on the unprecedented $3,500,000,000 revenue bill.

The house has had a month's vacation, and almost every incoming train and plane carried members summoned back by the leadership to act on the tax measure.

That legislation, carrying the heaviest tax burden in history, was agreed upon last week by a joint conference committee adjusting differences between separate measures passed by the senate and house. Before the bill could be approved finally by both chambers, however, house members of the conference group technically had to obtain official authority from their chamber to make a compromise agreement with the senate.

Because of a controversial income tax amendment lowering tax exemptions from $2,000 to $1,500 for married persons and from $800 to $750 for single individuals, it was expected that the house would have a record vote on the bill.

Vote May Be Delayed
Leaders said any vote probably would be delayed until Wednesday in order that all house members might have time to reach Washington.

On the senate side, Democratic Leader Barkley said President Roosevelt probably would tell congress today how much has been spent from the original $7,000,000,000 aid-to-Britain appropriation.

It was said reliably that the report would show substantial expenditures and would disclose that

Nazi Raider Reported Operating in Pacific Near Panama Entrance

Second and Third Cities in Russia are Threatened

(By The Associated Press)

Threats to Russia's second and third greatest cities heightened today as the Germans reported they had slashed through Leningrad's "defense front" at one point and the Russians admitted that the nazis movement was tightening the ring around Kiev.

Simultaneously, observers at Ankara forecast a sea-borne German drive against the Russian Crimea, site of the big soviet Black sea naval base of Sebastopol. There were reports that the Germans had ordered all Rumanian and Bulgarian Black sea ports closed to commercial shipping.

The nazi order capped repeated rumors that both German and Italian troops were being massed in Bulgarian ports for an attempt to land forces behind Russia's Dnieper river defense line in the Ukraine.

Dispatches from Sofia said partial mobilization of the Bulgarian army had been ordered for today.

Advices reaching London said the Germans had already thrust into the Perekop area, on the thin neck of land connecting the Crimea with the U. S. S. R. mainland. Previously, the Germans had claimed the capture of Zaporozhe, on the main railway line connecting Sebastopol with northern sources of supply.

Report Raider Near Canal
Meanwhile there were reports that a German sea raider was operating in the Pacific approaches to the Panama canal.

The navy was believed checking on the reports that the raider was preying on merchant shipping in the general vicinity of the Galapagos islands off the coast of Ecuador, some 1,600 miles west of the Pacific entrance to the canal, which presumably would fall within the sphere of defense waters noted by President Roosevelt in his warning to axis raiders.

Informed circles in Washington said it was probably a surface raider, discounting the possibility that one or more U-boats might be operating with a mother ship or from a secret base. New York shipping circles have been hearing for days of a raider in the Galapagos area where a Dutch freighter was sunk and others were chased.

R. A. F. To Leningrad

While spectacular mass air battles raged over Leningrad, the British reported they were rushing RAF pilots into the 86-day-old struggle on the eastern front. London newspapers said the first British fliers to arrive in Russia, several squadrons strong, already had gone into action, presumably

The War Today!

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

(Telegraph Special Service)

The appearance of British-manufactured warplanes on the Russian front, presumably to assist the Reds in their defense of the nazi siege of Leningrad, is a notable demonstration of allied cooperation—but it seems to me that it must be taken as emphasizing that the position of this great and strategically vital city is critical.

These planes are believed in London to have been rushed to the bolshevik front by way of the Arctic port of Murmansk. The unit is being described vaguely as a "wing", but this likely means something like forty planes, with full RAF force, including ground personnel.

Informed quarters in London say that further strong air reinforcements are to follow, but by the slower route through Persia. So this first comparatively small expeditionary force represents a need to try to pull Leningrad through a mighty tough situation.

These British warplanes may prove a Godsend to the hard-pressed Reds, for Berlin tells us that the German air force has, as usual, been a tower of strength in the nazi offensive. Indeed, the probabilities are that were it not for the luftwaffe, the invaders would still be far from this ancient capital of the Czars, instead of claiming that they have pierced the outer rim of the city's fortifications.

Forty British fighting planes—or whatever the number may be—

American Legion Convention Opens On Warning Note

Commander Says U. S. Attitude Must Not Change on Russia

Milwaukee, Wis., Sept. 15—(AP)—National Commander Milo J. Warner of Toledo, Ohio, told delegates to the American Legion national convention today the German invasion of Russia called for no change in the legion's attitude toward communism, but rather should strengthen its guard against the Soviet philosophy of government.

"We still hate Hitlerism. We still hate communism, and all that it implies," Warner asserted. "Stalin is simply defending his country from attack by Hitler. Whatever aid Stalin can give in resisting Hitler is incidentally of benefit to sincere peoples everywhere. That does not call for any change of attitude toward the communist party in the United States."

"Rather does the Russian situation compel a redoubling of our vigilance over communists and other subversive agents in our country because the circumstances are inclined to influence a relaxation of our guard."

Aid to Russia
"We understand that he presides has not authorized aid to Russia under the lend-lease bill. As your commander I have supported that position. I have further stated that if war supplies are given priority rights and sold to Russia they should be accompanied to their destination by our military observers, and we should have our own military observers on the eastern fighting front."

Warner said President Roosevelt, in his order to the navy to shoot first upon any axis warships found in American defense waters had spoken "clearly and plainly" concerning the government's policy in regard to protection of our commerce and shipping.

"As a united nation it is our duty to back up the president and congress to the utmost," he asserted.

"Our most important task as I

Sidelights

Ralph Pierce of Ashton, a magician who has attained the heights where he is considered one of the best in his profession, provided entertainment at the Columbia broadcast at the Loveland Community House Sunday afternoon. Pierce gave several of his most baffling numbers until the time for the broadcast featuring the guest stars was announced.

J. L. Glassburn, who for several days has been recuperating at his home north of the city, was very agreeably surprised yesterday afternoon when a visitor arrived to inquire as to his condition. Some of the members of the Dixon Lions club drove out to "Glassy's" house with Joe E. Brown, movie celebrity and radio comedian, to make a friendly call. The few minutes for the visit were lively ones and J. L. was greatly improved when his visitors left to return to Dixon.

Several members of Co. A, Third regiment, Illinois Reserve Militia, were unable to witness any of the activities Sunday, guard of eight being stationed at the Dixon Municipal airport throughout the period to guard the U. S. Army bomber which brought Bob Hope and Jerry Colonna to Dixon. Assigned to this duty were Lieut. Jack Kannaugh, Corporals Coffey, Cahill and Cagle, and Privates Lyons, Larson, Vandenberg, Marshall, Kreitzer, Quaco, Swegle, Wilson, Royster, Ommen and Bugler Kennaugh.

Commissioner Cal G. Tyler of the department of public health and safety today expressed a sincere "thank you" to the residents of Dixon and vicinity who attended the receptions to Hollywood celebrities here Sunday. Members of the state highways department safety division and Northwestern special agents joined the commissioner in expressing their appreciation of the manner in which the huge throng of Dixonites and visitors was handled Sunday. Not a single complaint or report was recorded, the only irregularity being the loss of a valued wrist

All Streets Around NorthWestern Depot Jammed With Crowd

Hope and Colonna Land in Time for Platform Program Sunday

More than 35,000 people massed around the NorthWestern passenger Station yesterday morning to welcome two former Dixonites who have reached the heights in the moving picture profession and their guests as they alighted from the crack streamliner, City of Los Angeles.

Not a single detail had been overlooked by the committee which arranged the reception. The huge crowd began assembling as early as 9 o'clock and older residents of the downtown section of the city declared it to be the largest gathering ever assembled in that part of Dixon.

As the train entered the yards, the Dixon Municipal band struck up a lively homecoming number and when the guests made their appearance on the large platform, a lusty cheer arose from the throng of wellcomers.

Miss Parsons Is First

Louella Parsons mounted the platform from the station waiting room, flanked by a color guard of the Dixon Legion Auxiliary. Color guards from Dixon post No. 12, American Legion were stationed at each corner of the platform.

Following Miss Parsons, was Ronald "Dutch" Reagan, accompanied by his mother, Mrs. J. E. Reagan, and in the history of Dixon no person of national fame has ever been accorded such an enthusiastic reception as was tendered these homecomers. Following the homecoming guests were other stars from Hollywood, movie capital of the world.

President Walter Knack of the Dixon Chamber of Commerce stepped before the battery of microphones, and briefly announced the homecoming programs, then presented Mayor William V. Slothower. The latter in behalf of the city, presented Miss Parsons with a huge floral key to the city.

Miss Parsons continued to acknowledge the cheers of the throng as she stepped to the microphones, while news photographers and hundreds of candid camera fans went into action. In acknowledging the reception, Miss Parsons said:

"This is an event, my old friends in Dixon, which I shall never forget. I will remember this occasion as long as I live and I know that Ronald will too. I am proud to have lived in Dixon, the finest city in the world in which the nicest people in the world reside. It is my hope that this homecoming will be a means of raising a fine sum of money for the Katherine Shaw Bethel hospital which is a wonderful institution in our city."

Presents "Dutch"

Miss Parsons then presented "Dutch" Reagan, whom she introduced as "my boy of whom I am most proud, and who is the same today as he was when he left Dixon."

Again the huge crowd sent up a lusty cheer as "Dutch" stepped to the microphone battery. When the crowd had quieted, he continued:

"I do not feel at ease on this platform, but would rather be out at the Lowell park beach calling to the kids to quit rocking the raft and to the smaller ones to stay in the shallow water," he remarked, and added: "When I stepped off the train I was greeted by a Dixon policeman and his star twinkled as I recalled that the last Dixon cop I had an experience with, was the means of my paying a fine for shooting firecrackers off the Galena avenue bridge."

"It is with sincere regret that I am not able to present my wife, Mrs. Reagan, who in the movie world is known as Jane Wyman, but as you doubtless know, she submitted to an operation a few days ago, and while her condition was not serious, the operation was necessary. When I left Hollywood she was crying because she could not accompany us on this trip."

Couldn't Sleep

"I want all of you to know that I did not sleep last night, thinking of my trip back to Dixon where I could meet my old friends. I counted the 77 persons whom I have been credited with pulling out of Rock river at Lowell park, many times during the night."

Miss Parsons as master of ceremonies at the platform, again stepped to the public address system and as she did so, she was greeted by Mrs. Erma Ommen, president of the Legion Auxiliary,

FBI Breaks German Code for Spies in Sensational Manner

Secret Writing Vital Weapon of Modern Warfare

BY WILLIAM PINKERTON
New York, Sept. 12.—(The Special News Service)—Have American agents cracked the secret codes of Nazi espionage?
Hints that American spy-hunters have held the keys to the mumbo-jumbo of Nazi military intelligence are being heard in the current trial of a group of men accused of transmitting defense secrets to Germany.
A federal attorney disclosed that an American counter-espionage agent actually had attended the special school for spies in a building next to the police presidium at Hamburg, Germany.
There he was taught how to make and decode German secret messages; how to handle a camera; how to operate a radio, and how to make the tiny microphotographs which convert bulky documents into a package small enough to be carried in the back of a watch case.
German agents gave the spy a copy of Rachel Field's "All This and Heaven Too"—an English best-seller novel—and this was the key to the coding and decoding of messages by which he was to keep in touch with the Hamburg headquarters.
The formula was complicated. The first step was to add the number of the day of the month to the number of the month of the year. The sum stood for a page in the novel.
On that page of the novel, with the aid of numbers and squares, he could find the answer to the apparently innocent messages he had received.
Unusual Disclosure
For a government to give out such detailed description of a foreign spy-ring is unusual. It tips off the foreign power that its code is known.
The fact that American officials were willing to put on court record their knowledge of German espionage methods may indicate that this code already has been abandoned. And that another is in use. It may be that American agents already have solved the new code.
Since World War days, it has been standard practice for espionage agents to change their codes from time to time, as insurance against the code-key falling into enemy hands.
Cryptographers say any code can be broken, given time. But, for military intelligence, the enemy's code must be deciphered quickly if information contained in a secret message is to help the battling generals.
German Code Recovered
In the World War, the British laid hands on the master code-book of the German navy by sending a diver down to prow through the cabins of a sunken warship.
The British kept their knowledge secret, and for months they deciphered German naval intelligence with the ease of a secretary transcribing shorthand.
The idea of using a popular novel as key to a secret code is a fresh but not particularly inspired approach to the problems of cryptography.
But there have been few really new discoveries in the art of secret-writing since the coded messages of the ancient Romans. Fundamentally, there are only two ways of arranging coded messages.
Two Ways of Arrangement
1. By pattern. Each letter in the alphabet may stand for another letter; or words may be plucked out of a message according to some pre-arranged formula. Patterns may become extremely complicated. But there are limits, and the ingenious cryptographer can always find the pattern at length.
2. By code-book. Here, the sequence of the letters or the words is no clue whatsoever. Decoding depends on possessing the code-book which gives the word-for-word translation from code into understandable writing.
The handicap of this method, of course, is that an agent must carry a code-book on his person. The danger of the code falling into enemy hands is great.
There are hundreds of variations and combinations of these methods.
Whatever the refinements of espionage, there is plenty of evidence that the messages are getting through—on both sides of the war.
German broadcasts to French soldiers in the Maginot line, giving in detail the names of their units and even what they had had for lunch proved it. German broadcasts to British ports in South Africa, detailing the arrival and departure of troops transported, proved it.
The British "V" campaign proved it. And so have British forays onto the European mainland—which could not have been accomplished without aid from within the enemy country.
Within 16 months, the Army and Navy will be turning out pilots at the rate of 40,000 yearly.

At Home in Skies

Lorimers Create "Maudie" Stories in Modern Slang

BY VESTA KELLING
New York.—(The Special News Service)—There is a world where "deadly" is a term of approval. Where a zombie isn't a drink but an unpopular girl. . . . Where a drip is not the result of a faulty water faucet but a male who does not meet with your approval. . . . Where a drizzle is a drip who is going steady with a girl. . . . Where "you reprobate" has replaced "dear" and "darling." . . . Where photo-genic means a drunk getting his picture taken in a night club. . . . It is a foreign land in which few grown ups could carry on a conversation, but two of them who are perfectly at home there are Graeme and Sarah Lorimer, husband and wife and co-authors who created the imaginary Maudie for a magazine and the radio and have four real life children of their own.
Master and mistress of double-deck are the Lorimers, veritable historians of the swift changing phraseology of the young.
Heroine of 36 Stories
Their Maudie, who has remained 17 years old for more than eight years, as the heroine of 36 stories in the Ladies Home Journal, is now on the air every Thursday at 7:30 p. m. for the Columbia Broadcasting System in "Maudie's diary," a sort of Henry Aldrich with a female star.
"Maudie is a product of his (pointing to her husband) experience with girls and my suppressed desires," explained Mrs. Lorimer the other day at a studio rehearsal. Mrs. Lorimer is 35, pretty, slender, curly haired, grave, and has a sense of humor.
"Maudie grew out of the depression," collaborated Lorimer. He is 38, red haired and has a sense of humor, too.
The Lorimers were married in 1926, both interested in being writers.
First Maudie Story
It was Mrs. Lorimer who wrote the first Maudie story, but it didn't sell.
"I was digging through our rejects one day," explained Lorimer, "when I ran across Sarah's Maudie story, read it over, and decided that the kid dialogue was funny but the plot too complicated."
"So we doctored up the story," Mrs. Lorimer continued, "just omitting the plot, and it was published."
"Soon," said Mrs. Lorimer, "young girls were writing to say that they read Maudie before going on dates to brush up their line. . . . Tell me how to be popular like Maudie! they would ask. . . ."
"We ran out of slang and wise-cracks," continued Lorimer, "and had to get suggestions by mail from young people we knew. . . . Finally we offered a dollar a wise-crack if and when it was used." At this point the Lorimers have a lexicon of slang and keep it constantly up to date.

Illinois Blue Law Handicapped Barbers

Back in 1895 someone in Peoria dug up an old "blue law" forbidding the operation of barber shops on Sunday, and it caused a lot of trouble, the Illinois Writers' Project, W. P. A. reports.
Contemporary newspapers reported that although some barbers had organized and sought to enforce the "close on Sunday" law, others objected. Many patrons, who wished to be clean shaven when they went to church on Sunday, and were not themselves adept in handling a razor, also objected.
One barber shaved his patrons free of charge, and was arrested. Another reported that Saturday's extra customers were only one-third of the regular Sunday morning trade, and another "kidded" the law enforcers by placing a dummy with lather on its face in a chair over Sunday.

Rackets in Union Circles Denounced by Illinois F. of L.

State Convention Told Rascality Has No Place in Unions

Danville, Ill., Sept. 15.—(AP)—The executive board of the Illinois State Federation of Labor, renewing its attack on labor rackets, informed delegates to the federation's 59th annual convention today that "rascality has no proper place in the trade union movement."
Under the heading "Disreputables," the board devoted a full section of its annual report to the danger of "men of evil reputation" in the American labor movement.
"During the past year," the report said, "in order to protect the good name of the federation and its associated unions, the executive board was obliged to take definite action by severing the affiliation of one union and holding the affiliation of certain others in abeyance."
Referring to exposures which have appeared in the public press, the report pointed out that the labor leaders involved could resort to the slander and libel laws if the charges made against them were untrue.
"It is a sinister fact that they have failed to do so and that, because of this, the labor movement is made to suffer," the board said.
"Rascality has no proper place in the trade union movement."
The executive board recommends x x x that "the attention of all affiliated unions be again directed to the necessity of guarding themselves against the intrusion of gangsters and other disreputable characters."
Illinois Good AFL State
In another section of the report the board stated that Illinois, with more than 3,000 local units, might be said to be one of the best American Federation of Labor states in the union.
"The executive board is of the opinion that x x x it is now time to marshal the combined facilities of our A. F. of L. movement for the protection and advancement of the whole," the report continued. It urged a stepping up of organizational activities, with trade union officials volunteering their services to all groups whose unionization was still in formative stages.
The board submitted its anti-strike policy in defense industries for the approval of the convention, and urged the delegates to carry on the federation's campaign to bring more defense work into the factories of the state.
Support for Durkin
It also asked the convention to go on record in support of the reappointment of Martin P. Durkin as director of the state department of labor. Durkin served for eight years under the Democratic Horner administration, and Governor Green has as yet taken no action to replace him.
The report of Victor A. Olander, secretary-treasurer of the federation, also was presented to the convention today. It showed that the federation's receipts for the fiscal year ending July 31 totaled $72,526.46. After deducting general expense for the year, it disclosed the federation had $20,982.06 in cash on hand and $22,300 in investments.
Another report said that 151 additional organizations were enrolled as members of the federation during the year.

Scott Field Is Made Over Into Air Corps School

Scott Field, Ill.—(AP)—The construction of four new cement runways here has aroused speculation over what may be the next step in the rapid expansion of Scott Field, which has been made over from a lighter than air base into a $20,000,000 Army Air Corps radio communications school.
Even army officers stationed here don't know to what use the runways will be put. At least, if they know they are not telling.
Last week the last vestige of the "balloon age" vanished from the field with the shipment of the final carload of helium gas cylinders to another station.
Decide To Remark Field
In 1938 the army decided to remake Scott Field. The helium plant and huge dirigible hangars came down. So did the mooring mast. A new post with scores of new buildings to house the radio college came into being. The blimps were shipped away to coastal bases and the last of the two dirigibles were decommissioned.
According to present plans Scott field will be graduating 400 students every two weeks by fall and sending them back to their respective tactical units as the "ears and voice of the air corps." More than 12,000 young men are currently enrolled for the 22 weeks training course and workmen are rushing completion of 170 new buildings which will accommodate an additional 6000.
Those sent here for schooling are chosen from among men who have shown aptitude for radio work in the various army and air corps units throughout the country. Most of them are under 25.
Looking Glass Region
Scott Field, comprising 2800 acres in the heart of the famous Looking Glass prairie region, is divided into three general sections: permanent personnel and school group areas one and two.
Construction plans generally follow a giant "X" pattern, with one corner still open for possible development.
In less than a year the field has grown from a post of less than 100 buildings to a key station of nearly 500 different units, including one of the three largest mess halls in the nation. It will accommodate 7000 men a day; 1500 at a time.
A majority of the original buildings in the permanent personnel area are of red brick trimmed in white, giving the field more of the appearance of a college campus than an army post.
The only airplanes on regular duty at Scott Field today are "flying classrooms" used for instruction purposes. On each trip 10 students go aloft for practical experience in operating airplane radios and establishing contact with ground stations.
One of these planes—a C-39 Douglas—has flown approximately 215,000 miles, almost half the distance to the moon, since last September.
Automobile accident death toll for the U. S. in 1940 amounted to 34,500, an increase of 7 per cent over the 1939 mark.

Compelling Drama

Compelling drama is the keynote of the world premiere showing of "International Squadron" here tonight. Above are Joan Perry and Ronald Reagan in one of the picture's most stirring dramatic scenes.

ceiving set on the stage, bringing it the Dixon audience. Then the Chicago announcers "sent" the program out to Dixon, and Harrington took charge, introducing Reagan as master of ceremonies.

Life Dream Come True
"Dutch" said that the homecoming was realization of a dream which probably every boy has at some time—that of coming home and being acclaimed by the home folks. He recalled that when he and his brother Neil were students at Eureka college they would hitchhike as far as Mendota on their journeys home, board a train there for the rest of the trip to Dixon and then would ride from the depot to their home in a taxi.

He mentioned a log at Lowell park into which he had cut 77 notches, each representing a life he had saved while a life guard at the beach, and which he said he had promised to take to his wife, Jane Wyman, who was unable to accompany him to Dixon from Hollywood because of an operation to which she submitted last week.

However, he said, presentation to him Sunday afternoon of a clock with 77 plaques has solved that problem for him, as the clock will be much easier to pack and transport.

Miss Parson Reminisces
Reagan introduced Miss Parsons, who told of the thrill she was getting out of the whole program and she reminisced of her school days during an unrehearsed skit with

Reagan, for whom she gave the high school cheer is vogue when she attended high school here. Reagan recalled his experiences with the high school football team and opined that had Miss Parsons been in the cheering sections while he was a player D. H. S. would have won all its games.

George Montgomery, who said he came along from Hollywood just for the ride—"and what a ride, I'm still dizzy"—expressed his appreciation of the welcome given him; while Ann Rutherford, M.G.M.'s fairest starlet and heroine of the Andy Hardy stories, told of her joy in the manner in which she was being received and suggested that the Mason and Dixon line be moved to Dixon, the hospitality of which is equal to that of the south.

Joe E. Brown, who clowned off and on throughout the whole program, mimicked Reagan's speech of appreciation; while Bob Hope and Jerry Colonna, wound up the program with an impromptu skit.

Early in the program "Bill" Slothower, mayor of Dixon, briefly welcomed the visitors to the city. The story of the evening's second broadcast, John Harrington's daily "Man On The Street" program, will be found on page 7.

During May, 1941, United States aircraft industry reported 45,588, 286 man-hours worked by 262,671 employees.

Reagans Service to Boy Scouts Is Recalled by Leader

From a Telegraph reader in Mendota comes the following concerning "Dutch" Reagan:

"During Ronald Reagan's service as lifeguard at the Lowell park beach he not only saved lives, but also taught others how to save lives and practice water front safety. I do not happen to know if Mr. Reagan was a Boy Scout, but I do know that he co-operated with the Scouts in teaching them swimming and life saving. I remember him helping several boys from the Amboy Boy Scout troop with the training and passing of merit badges in life saving and swimming. "Dutch" as they called him then as they still call him, coached these boys and they passed their tests with honor, with the approval of their local troop and the local area council, which I believe was located in Rockford.

"The names of some of the boys as I remember them were: LeRoy Peltz, Darwin Badger, Paul Dyer, Arthur Machen, Earl Anderson, and a few others that I do not recall. The reason that I happen to know of the happening is because I drove the boys to Dixon several times in my car, and left them with Mr. Reagan while I attended to my business, picking them up later. These boys were all members of the Amboy Boy Scout troop of which Rev. Fred Brink was Scoutmaster. I have lost contact with most of the boys of the old Scout troop, but there are still two of the life saving group living in Amboy. Paul Dyer who is working for the I. N. U. company, and Art Machen who is a printer at the Amboy News. A few years ago Art Machen became Scoutmaster of his old troop No. 62, and served in that capacity for several years.

"I know that all the boys who had the pleasure to train and pass their tests under their good friend "Dutch" Reagan, will try to be present to greet him in Dixon.

Tea-Goers Meet and Admire Movie Visitors

Some 200 Guests Turn Out to Honor Miss Parsons, "Dutch" Reagan and Other Celebrities

The biggest and happiest week end in its history—that's what Dixon had in mind when the homecoming for Louella Parsons and Ronald Reagan was planned. And the celebration that got underway yesterday morning when the City of Los Angeles rolled in with the first distinguished arrivals from the west coast is far exceeding the highest hopes of its sponsors. For never in the life of this little community along the Rock river has there been a more spontaneous or more joyous outpouring of hospitality (and surely the thousands of persons witnessing yesterday's preliminary events can no longer doubt that old friends always remain the same).

At 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, some 200 invited guests were received at tea at the Loveland Community House, honoring the Hollywood celebrities, whose fame appears to rest lightly upon their shoulders.

Miss Parsons, now a celebrated motion picture editor with International News Service, was beaming with pleasure as she recognized one friend after another in the throng of guests. She was wearing an all-black costume, with a brimmed hat, also black. Mr. Reagan, with the same boyish smile and unaffected enthusiasm that has caused his delighted townspeople to remark repeatedly "He's the same old 'Dutch'", was the man of the hour; and the soft brown eyes of Ann Rutherford were round with the excitement of it all. A spray of gardenias was pinned to the shoulder of Ann's silver fox jacket.

Bob Hope and Jerry Colonna wise-cracked their way through the tea hour; handsome six-foot-two George Montgomery, Hollywood's new romantic hero who came from Montana where men are cowhands, was surrounded with admirers, as was Joe E. Brown, who immediately captured the favor of the tea-goers with his unassuming friendliness.

Hundreds of persons who did not plan to attend the tea, thronged surrounding sidewalks in the vicinity of the civic center by mid-afternoon, and didn't seem to mind waiting for a glimpse of the visiting notables. Automobiles lined the streets for blocks in all directions.

Yesterday's tea table was appointed in pastel colors, with pink and silver predominating. Pink tapers in silver holders were lighted in three silver bouquets at either side of a center bouquet of pink roses.

Mrs. Eustace E. Shaw and Mrs. Charles R. Walgreen sat opposite at the table. Their co-hostesses for the occasion included Mrs. Zoe Osborn Yatham, Mrs. H. U. Bardwell, Mrs. Warren G. Murray, Mrs. Z. W. Moss, and Mrs. Theodore Fuller.

BERNICE NORMAN, CLARENCE EADS, EXCHANGE VOWS

Miss Bernice Norman of 422 Ninth street and Clarence Eads, also of this city, were married Saturday afternoon at the parsonage of St. Paul's Lutheran church. Dr. L. W. Walter heard the vows at 5 o'clock.

Mrs. Lawrence Wiebers of Oak Park and George Burke attended the couple. The bride was dressed in blue, with a spray of gardenias at her shoulder.

Following the nuptial ceremony, a wedding dinner was served at Peter Piper's for 12. Afterward, Mr. and Mrs. Eads left for Des Moines, Iowa to remain until the end of the week.

The bride, who has made her home with Mrs. Glenn Pettenger for the past 12 years, was graduated from Dixon high school in 1939, and was formerly employed at the Snow White Bakery. Mr. Eads is with the Illinois Northern Utilities company.

President Reports to Congress Today on Lease-Lend Aid

Washington, Sept. 15.—(AP)—President Roosevelt reported to congress today that actual exports of American war supplies to nations fighting the axis, under the lend-lease program, had totaled $190,447,670 up to August 31.

This figure represented expenditures for weapons and other supplies actually sent abroad. But, the president added, defense articles transferred, including some still waiting to be shipped, amounted to an additional $35,946,701, while various services, such as repairing naval vessels, added up to still another figure of $78,169,377.

Thus in services, transfers of title and actual exports, the United States has provided $324,743,000 in assistance to the foes of the axis.

Furthermore, expenditures for articles for services not yet finished added up to approximately $162,000,000, Roosevelt said.

Thus, the president figured in his report that "through the month of August the total dollar value of defense articles transferred and defense services rendered, plus expenditures for other lend-lease purposes," amounted to approximately $487,000,000.

"Planes, tanks, guns, and ships have begun to flow from our factories and yards," he said, "and the flow will accelerate from day to day, until the stream becomes a river, and the river a torrent, engulfing this totalitarian tyranny which seeks to dominate the world."

People's Column

INJUSTICE VS. JUSTICE

In considering the many wild thoughts expressed by all concerning the conviction and punishment of R. E. Johnson and Al Lucas linking them with the killing of George Bush, notwithstanding the were downright lies, yet some of them were accepted as a means of saving Johnson's life. The ice cold fact is that Johnson was not at Nelson, Ill., during the shooting in which George Bush is said to have been killed. Al Lucas was there, but not in the capacity of a killer. Al Lucas had gone to Nelson from Dixon early in the afternoon to draw his pay in keeping with an appointment he had to go with R. E. Johnson to Keokuk, Ia.

The shooting: Al Lucas was in the round house in an attempt to get his pay. Being asked to look for the foreman, Al Lucas opened the exit door, and Curley Wilson stepped out in front of him and a voice sounded from the darkness, "Here goes the (blankety-blank)" followed by several shots both from behind and in front of Al Lucas. At the sound of the shooting, Al Lucas threw himself to the ground and rolled under a large boiler-like tank, that sat horizontal-like along the side of the boiler room.

When the shooting ceased Al Lucas pulled himself from under the tank and off in the dark of the coal chute to await the arrival of R. E. Johnson. At that time, December 6th, 1918, there was a passenger train arriving at Nelson, Ill., having passed through Dixon enroute to Peoria at 7 p. m. or thereabout.

R. E. Johnson was on this train. Al Lucas, entrained, passed through to the smoker where he found R. E. Johnson. On being seated, R. E. Johnson inquired of Al Lucas about the shooting at Nelson saying: "The sheriff and his party came to Nelson. We heard in Dixon that some one was killed there tonight."

Al Lucas did not know, but when R. E. Johnson and Al Lucas arrived at Hannibal, Mo. A. E. Johnson wrote to Sam Starks at Dixon of the trouble at Nelson.

Suspect: This letter fell into the hands of the sheriff and our arrest and conviction was the ultimate result.

A Thought For Today

Grudge not one against another, brethren, lest ye be condemned; behold, the judge standeth before the door.—James 5:9.

The worst way to improve the world is to condemn it.—Bailey.

Some Good Everywhere

Merely to hate everything that has a foreign origin is not true Americanism.

A doughboy, returned from the World War, once described for the benefit of one of his 100-percent-American friends the blessed estate of a Frenchman called Camille. This ex-soldier became acquainted with Camille because at one time during the war he had been privileged to sleep in Camille's haymow.

Camille had approximately ten acres of land devoted to vineyard, orchard, vegetable garden and hay. Camille had a horse yclept Georges, and a cow the soldiers called Joan of Arc. His ten acres of land provided a living in good crop years, and was easily worked by one man and his wife. In bad years Camille had to fall back upon the income from some government bonds which pair interest regularly. Now Camille was happy, not because of his riches, because by American standards he was a miserably poor man. Camille was blessed because he didn't want more than he knew he could acquire.

As mentioned, the returned doughboy described Camille's felicity in poetic terms. That, he said, was the ideal life.

The rampant 100-percent-cast a lurid eye upon the doughboy and remarked:
"If you like that country so darn well, why don't you go back there to live?"

As for ourselves, we insist that Camille had a good thing, and if that be treason, do your worst. The fact is that there is some good to be found in every country, and some splendid ideas have developed in every nation.

The best American would keep his eyes open, glad to accept any idea that does not overturn what we already have. The thing we need to do is to add to and improve our philosophy of government. And the thing we must avoid is the importation of ideas that would destroy it. Fundamentally good things are improved by refinements, not by revolution.

Cafelite—More Wolf Soup

The old story of the fellow who got tired of seeing the wolf at his door, went out, whacked him, and made wolf soup out of him, is one that has an ever-recurring moral.

Brazil is the latest country to turn a disadvantage into an advantage. For years it has been plagued by a coffee surplus; the smoke of burning coffee has drifted across the state of Sao Paulo each season, coffee burned to be rid of surpluses.

Now a young North American has devised a process of making a new plastic—appropriately named cafelite—out of coffee beans. Brazil is going into the production of cafelite from its surplus coffee, thus at one time reducing its surplus and marketing one of the world's cheapest plastics.

Cafelite will undoubtedly compete with North American plastics of various kinds. If it comes up to its advance notices, it is one more example of the changes that must be expected in the post-war world.

Americanism, a Positive Attitude

Speaking of the alleged un-Americanism of Mr. Henderson, it is time to work on the theory that Americanism should be a positive attitude. We shall illustrate by calling attention to the words of a small-town pastor with regard to Christianity.

The Ten Commandments and the Sermon on the Mount, he said, are only illustrations of certain moral attitudes that ought to keep a man spiritually healthy while he is engaged actively in being a Christian. Many a church member, said this preacher, keeps the commandments faithfully, and holds to the ideals expressed on the mount, but is a perfect nonentity. The kernel of Christianity consists not of what you don't do, but of what you do.

If you actually help your neighbors, make other people's lives worth living, and leave this world a better place than it was when you arrived, you are practicing positive Christianity. At least that was what the preacher said.

Americanism ought to be considered in that light, too. If a man is going to be a substantial American he must not only refrain from doing certain things, but he must also do certain things.

He must, for one thing, obey the laws set up by people's representatives in congress. He must obey the local laws and teach his children to have reverence for them. To our mind, the fellow who pays his bills and taxes, votes regularly and follows the laws that he himself has helped to make, is a more practical American than the fellow who removes his hat grudgingly when the flag passes by—because he knows some one will knock it off if he doesn't.

He must not only refrain from loving communism and fascism, but he must also have passionate devotion to the fundamentals under which this undeveloped wilderness grew in 150 years to be the home of the richest, best-house, best-fed, best-clothed and best-educated nation in the world's history.

The fellow who goes against these principles, whether he is in the Supreme court, congress, the white house or the cabinet, is non-American, if not decidedly un-American.

It may or may not be significant that New York police were equipped with steel helmets shortly after a dame socked a bluecoat.

Sgt. York, Hero of World War, Speaker at Legion's Meeting

Asks Organization to Help Mould Foreign Policy of Nation

Milwaukee, Sept. 15.—(AP)—Sergeant Alvin C. York, of Tennessee, hero of the A. E. F., and an advocate of all-out aid to Russia as a means of stopping Germany, wants the American Legion national convention to play an important part in moulding the foreign policy of the United States.

Sergeant York spoke last night at a religious-patriotic service for Legionnaires on the eve of the first business session of the 23rd annual convention—which is faced with serious decisions on problems arising from the foreign conflicts.

An avowed interventionist, York urged the Legion to stay out of politics but to take a big hand in shaping the nation's foreign policy.

"For we who are here have learned a lesson," he said. "We learned that liberty, freedom and democracy are not inherited. We know that a country cannot fight to win them once and stop. We learned the hard way that liberty and freedom and democracy are prizes awarded only to those people who fight to win them—and then fight eternally to hold them."

The convention, with such business to transact on vital issues of national defense, awaited the report of National Commander Milo J. Warner of Toledo, a message from President Roosevelt, to be delivered by Frank Knox, Secretary of the Navy, words from Fiorello H. LaGuardia, mayor of New York and director of the Office of Civilian Defense.

Committees Report
Reports of its standing committees, including that of the national defense committee, which recommended that geographic limitations on the use of American troops be abolished, were turned over today to new committees.

The committees will draw up the recommendations on which the convention will act before it adjourns Thursday.

The defense committee proposed a permanent system of universal military training, a permanent two-ocean navy, fortification of all American islands suitable for defense purposes and acquisition by peaceful means of any other islands that could be used for defense.

Sergeant York, whose life has been depicted in a movie, disagreed with the statement of Senator Gerald Nye, non-interventionist, that the picture bearing his name is propaganda.

"If the story of my life is propaganda," he said, "then so is this very convention, because the simple story of my life revolves around the same great experiences that yours' does. If our lives are propaganda, and Senator Nye is against all propaganda, then he should start immediately to tear up all the history books in the country."

Railway Chieftain Dies in St. Louis After Operation

St. Louis, Sept. 15.—(AP)—John Cannon, 69, chief operating officer of the Missouri Pacific railroad and a national figure in railway circles, died Sunday at the company hospital where he underwent an operation a week ago.

He was a member of the operating-transportation section of the Association of American Railroads for several years and had served as its chairman.

Recently he had served on a general conference committee at Chicago negotiating wage demands of organized railroad labor.

Cannon's railroad career which spanned 55 years—36 of them with the Missouri Pacific—began at Cairo, Ill., his birthplace, where he became a messenger in the mechanical department of the Illinois Central at the age of 14.

After advancing to trainmaster of the Illinois Central he resigned in 1905 to become superintendent for the Missouri Pacific at Coffeyville, Kas.

General Superintendent
He became general superintendent in 1915 after serving as superintendent at Little Rock, Ark., and De Soto, Poplar Bluff and Jefferson City, Mo.

He was made general superintendent of transportation in 1917 and in 1925 became general manager, a position he held one year before being promoted to vice-president in charge of operations.

L. W. Baldwin, head of the Missouri Pacific line, described Cannon as broad visioned and progressive and termed his death a severe loss to the Missouri Pacific and to the railroad industry.

Cannon, who resided in St. Louis, is survived by his widow; a son, John Cannon, Jr., Memphis, Tenn.; and two daughters, Mrs. J. L. Matthews, St. Louis, and Mrs. C. J. Lawrence, Hollywood, Calif.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS
By PAUL MALLON

(Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc., reproduction in whole or in part strictly

Washington, Sept. 15.—Now that all has been said and little done about Mr. Roosevelt's new policy, it's skin at least is fully evident. Mr. Roosevelt presented some specific evidence, laid down some broad principles and now intends to do as he pleases. This is the same formula he has been using lately. He gave the evidence of how the nazis had been sinking some ships. He projected the broad policy of the freedom of the seas and of shooting to protect them. Then he did not say where he was going to limit himself.

The effect is a declaration of war against the nazis, a sea and air war to range all the waters of the world possibly excluding only a small indistinct area (the combat zone) in some respects.

In this new kind of undeclared war (as he vaguely limited it), Mr. Roosevelt can perform any of the projects that have recently been discussed. He could convoy, seize Dakar and the Azores, patrol the Red sea, even send the navy into the English channel and North sea. No one here thinks he intends to do all these things immediately. He just chose to leave himself wide open limits as usual.

His game is the same as always, to keep Hitler guessing as to the limitations of his intentions. If Hitler knew how far Roosevelt intends to send ships or naval scouting planes, the German navy could be kept out of those areas. As it is wherever a navy ship or plane meets a German ship or plane, there the undeclared war will be on.

The only obvious important restrictions upon Mr. Roosevelt's all-out purpose to shoot nazis war vessels on sight are three. He cannot send draftees outside the Western Hemisphere, although possibly he could send them to Iceland. (There is a law against that). He cannot send American merchant men into combat areas imposed by the neutrality act. He cannot permit American citizens to travel on belligerent vessels.

The Germans are supposed to have around 200 submarines they had 100 when they started the war.) Their operations lately have been limited for lack of fuel. But their ship fleet is certainly sufficiently large so that incidents (battles) cannot be avoided whenever an American ship or plane meets a German ship or plane in the north or south Atlantic, the Indian ocean or wherever.

This, Mr. Roosevelt said, is to protect the freedom of the seas. What he meant was the Anglo-British freedom of the seas, certainly not German freedom of the seas.

They said around the top official desks Mr. Roosevelt was induced to take this further advance step because he was convinced Germany is beaten (although some few top officials estimate the war might last two years yet) and because the Japanese emperor's assumption of control over the wild army of Japan gave cause for relief that some portions of our fleet could safely be moved from the Pacific to the Atlantic to enforce the new policy where it is likely to need its greatest force.

The most important matter now, lies behind the indefinite new Roosevelt policy to guarantee transport of goods to anti-nazi nations on the seas. The real question still is production. If you cannot produce enough fighting material no amount of protection for its transport will do you any good.

Mr. Roosevelt thinks he has solved this problem, temporarily at any rate by adopting the Rosenman defense reorganization plan, shifting men, bureaus and authority here and there, but leaving the final say for himself.

The proof of whether he has solved it will come when he and everyone else finds out whether he will be too busy to exercise his top authority.

Suppressed groans were evident down in the defense set-up when Mr. Roosevelt made this decision and dropped the plan of Bernard M. Baruch which centers in one-man control. Mr. Baruch's one-man plan was originated in the World War but it has been studied and brought up to date by the war college and army industrial college, so it is really not his plan. Baruch knows more about these things than anyone else around government because he has been through them before.

Mr. Roosevelt turned Baruch down because he does not want to delegate the final say to another man. He does not want anyone else to run away with the show. Some of his officials suggesting he also did not believe he had anyone in sight who could do the job.

Advocates of the mis-named Baruch plan think it is not a

Nazis Try to Make White Rye Bread; Other Substitutes

Berlin.—(Correspondence of The Special News Service)—The Kaiser Wilhelm Institute is trying to make rye bread look and taste like wheat bread.

It is cultivating the bitter lupine bean to make it sweeter for use as coffee.

In recent years Germans have been leaning toward the American preference for white bread, but most of the reich's land is more suitable for rye than wheat, and with limited wartime importation of wheat, wheat bread rations have been cut.

While the government has been telling the people constantly that "rye bread is more healthful", institute experts have crossed rye and wheat to produce a product which some have said the "similarity to wheat stood out". But further experiments appear necessary before white rye bread tasting like wheat bread is likely to materialize.

Bitter lupine beans, which have been poor folk's fare for centuries, have been made more palatable for fastidious tastes, Institute workers declare. For years they puttered around among some 1,500,000 lupine plants and found five sweet ones. These were developed to the extent that now you can get noodles made of lupine beans, and in the absence of real coffee—practically non-existent in wartime Germany—you can get lupine bean coffee.

Cellulose, used in hundreds of ersatz products, is obtained from poplar trees. But German poplars didn't grow fast on this soil. So the experts crossed them with American and Siberian poplars.

Then they gave the sprouts a shot in the arm by soaking them with the sap of meadow-saffron. This is colchicine, the gout remedy—an American discovery. Sprayed on plants, it results in permanent changes, such as thicker stems, larger flowers and sometimes useless freaks.

With this treatment, the experts say, has at least doubled the growth of the poplars.

Among other experiments, they are trying to make sugar beets grow above ground like kohlrabi, and they're making lifebelts out of sunflower stems.

Widely Known Farm Leader Is Dead

A native of Waukesha, Wis., Cavernon had engaged in the utilities business, newspaper publishing and manufacturing at Kewanee, Ill., before coming to southeast Missouri in 1907.

He owned a 2000-acre plantation which he developed from reclaimed New Madrid county Mo., swampland.

The body was sent to St. Louis for cremation. Burial will be at Lake Mills, Wis.

BILLY SOOSE PUTS HIS PRESTIGE ON THE LINE TONIGHT IN RING FIGHT

Los Angeles, Sept. 15.—(AP)—Middleweight Champion Billy Soose planks his prestige, if not his title, on the line tonight in a 12-round outdoor fight to a decision with bronze-skinned Ceferino Garcia, veteran Filipino with the famed so-called bolo-punch.

Good looking Billy, former Penn State college boxer and owner of one of the most gifted lefthands in the fight business, goes into the ring a slight betting favorite to outpoint Garcia, who held Soose's New York-Pennsylvania recognized world title in 1939-40.

The ageless socker from the Philippines carried a young army of admirers behind him, however, and a knockout over the easterner would hardly be a surprise to them.

Annual Blackhawk Area Circus Will Be Held Sept. 27

Belvidere. — Announcement of the program for the second annual Blackhawk Area Council Circus of Boy Scouts to be presented here the night of Sept. 27 was made today by Ray Helsdon and Russell Broman, co-chairman in charge of the event. Thousands of Boy Scouts from northern Illinois, dramatizing the theme of the "Anchor of Democracy" in a world torn by totalitarianism, will participate in the colorful program. Representatives will come from McHenry, Winnebago, Whiteside, Ogle and Lee counties besides Boone. The performers include 1,822 Scouts, 692 Cubs, a total of 2,514 and a registered membership of 840 adults.

The circus will be presented at the Belvidere athletic field and special lighting effects are planned. Last year's event at Sterling drew 2,000 spectators, and local men expect a larger crowd. A parade will open the program. All the Scouts from the six counties will march in review, bearing flags and wearing Scout uniforms. A prologue, dramatizing the discovery of America, the landing of the Pilgrims, and the lives of great Americans will be an added feature. There will also be a bicycle drill, a mass demonstration of Scouting activities, and a game period in which the field will be divided into forty squares where the Scouts will perform.

Following a camping and pioneering exhibit, a finale of all the Boy Scouts will be held. A giant anchor will be formed in front of a lighted fireplace, with flags and colors massed, and this will close the program.

The committee includes Ray Helsdon and Russell Broman, co-chairmen; Gene Woolsey, council commissioner; Rockford, Leo Randolph, Woodstock; Alonzo Maginnis, Rochelle; Dan Metzger, Sterling; A. A. Stocker, Scout Executive; and Arnold Schenk, Field Scout Executive.

Officials promise that there will also be clowns.

SERIAL STORY

BRIDE FROM THE SKY

BY HELEN WELSHIMER

COPYRIGHT, 1941,
NEA SERVICE, INC.

THE STORY: Two authors have associated magazine editor Judy Allen. One, Sandy Ammerman, a writer, she believed she loved when his plane is downed on a trip to the west coast, only to change her mind when newspaper links him romantically with debutante Peg Gordon. The other is Philip Rogers, attorney. Judy changes her mind in Chicago about flying to join Sandy, returns to her office in New York to find her secretary, Sara Fuller, acting suspiciously.

THE OFFICE TAKES SIDES

CHAPTER VII

JUDY paused at the low, white entrance to her office, suddenly in full control of her senses, every inch the editor of her department. Only the brown blaze of her eyes revealed her inner turmoil.

Unconsciously Sara Fuller hung up. Her green eyes darkened and she stood, towering above the girl whose assistant she was.

"Wasn't it rather an abrupt ending to your conversation?" Judy asked, removing her hat and cape. "I'm sorry I interrupted. I'm back, if I'm wanted again."

"Sorry," Sara Fuller answered, drawing herself so tall that Judy felt her inches were not adequate. She felt young, inexperienced, like a fiddler without a song to play. Sara would know when she loved a man. She would bind a cord to hold him. "The call was not for you. It was for me." Sara's suave voice answered.

She might have said, "Please open the mail," or, "Get me the latest proofs." She might even have made a suggestion about dusting the desks or watering the flowers. She ruled the office at that moment, and she refused to acknowledge any interference.

Judy turned quickly, eyes flashing, voice smoldering under its coldness. She picked up the empty leather frame that one time had held Sandy's picture.

"Where is Sandy?" she asked, voice tense. "I didn't give you permission to destroy his picture. I'd like it back, please. At once!"

"I took it upon myself to keep still when I was asked for a picture of you and Sandy. I neither denied or gave the right to anyone to take that." Sara's voice was clear and clipped.

"No, you merely turned your head respectfully and didn't care. You said it—not for 30 pieces of silver, but to hurt me. You've wanted to do that for a long time! But why, Sara? Why?"

SARA shrugged her narrow shoulders, smoothed her black hair with one hand, and twisted her lips into a semblance of a smile.

"All of this—this discomfort—hasn't it rather badly. Please believe I wasn't responsible for it. I hardly staged that scene at Peg Gordon's camp. And I certainly didn't go around gathering up the snaps in the latest papers. Peg and Sandy must have known each other somewhere . . . sometime."

"It was nice of Miss Gordon to break her ankle just so she could bring her flying Lochinvar down at her desk. 'She needn't have exerted herself. I wasn't engaged to him. He's as free as the air.'"

"You mean that?" Sara crossed the floor on honey-colored brogues, whose tone was repeated in the green and blue of the light-weight plaid suit she wore.

"Certainly. Why does it seem odd to you?" Judy held her voice to its low contralto. Her hands played with new proofs. She wished Sara would move away. There was something she must know and know quickly. In the third drawer on the right-hand side of her desk she had left half a dozen kodak snaps of Sandy, taken the summer before when his silver plane first flew her way. She must reach for them, must see that they were in place. But that wasn't all. She must see Sandy and Sara grouped together in some gay world where she never had been.

"I'll look over the proofs," Sara was saying. "You have, other, more important things to do." She picked up the copy she spoke, and stepped into the cubbyhole that was her office. Amazed at the dark girl's sudden generosity Judy smiled and let her go.

Her pictures still were there. She opened her bag and hid the pictures under a zipper.

Now she must find the late papers. They were in a wastepaper basket in the outer office. Nonchalantly as though she discussed new shades for summer nail polish she smoothed the discarded sheets, and spoke to the secretaries and receptionist.

"I've heard I'm climbing up to glory on Sanford Ammerman's kite," she said. "Oh, here's the story. Not a bad picture of Peg, is it?"

"She's sold on herself," someone interrupted. "But I suppose she has enough buckets of glamor to do a complete job. The gal doesn't appeal to me."

"I thought you'd say yes to Sandy pretty soon," another associate editor interposed. "He had something—gallantry, recklessness, dash. I think you made a mistake, Judy." Her smile was swift and understanding as she passed Judy.

So already the office had taken sides. Some believed the rescue act was authentic, or were determined to pretend that they did. And others were hoping that Sandy had flown away. The gossip columns would say things. Everyone would know. That is, unless Sandy found a newspaper in his mountain fastness and squared things with the public. He would have to deny the Peg romance and toss his heart down from the sky to a girl with rusty hair and eyes that were purpled with mist as she waited.

SHE found a new set of proofs, carried them into her office and closed the door. If she worked she would not remember. Work stayed with you. It never let you down. Work spread its paths across long loneliness and silence until you forgot someone whose eyes were tender or laughter-filled, teasing or gay, but never stern. Until you ceased to wonder why everyone in the world but you had known about another girl.

A rain came up and splattered the window pane. Lilacs from a potted plant grew sweeter and Judy turned to read the card it carried. "Phil." Ah, Phil was being sweet today. And asking nothing, nothing except that she meet him that afternoon. If she didn't hurry she would be late.

She read the stories, blue-penciled them, made two inserts, saw that the cutlines fitted the layouts. She pulled the final sheets toward her. The rain came harder. The lilac fragrance grew heavier, sweeter.

She glanced down at the last story. She drew her breath in slowly. This was just part of a bad dream, too. Something around which a story-teller arranged his tale.

But even as she read the story, she lifted the telephone from its ivory cradle and repeated Philip Rogers' number in a low voice, caught in a husky fearfulness.

Rude Reception Dazes Two Pro Football Coaches

By TOM SILER

Chicago, Sept. 15—(AP)—Earle (Greasy) Neale and Big Bill Edwards, two highly successful college coaches, still were a bit dazed today by their rude reception in the National Football League.

Each made his competitive bow over the weekend with almost identical results—crushing defeat by two of the most improved and powerful eleven in the 10-man circuit.

Neale, former backfield coach at Yale, saw the stream-lined New York Giants smear the first edition of his Philadelphia Eagles, 24 to 0, before 28,747 at Philadelphia Saturday night. Curly Lambeau's Green Bay Packers were no more hospitable to Edwards, rolling over his Detroit Lions, 23 to 0, yesterday afternoon. Edwards was signed by the Lions after a brilliant regime at Western Reserve.

A home guard of 16,734 saw the Packers begin their title bid in auspicious style although the Lions held them away from the goal line until the final period. However, field goals by Tiny Engbrechtsen, Clark Hinkle and Eddie Jankowski gave Green Bay a 9 to 0 lead. Cecil Isbell hit Don Hutson with a pass for one of the fourth period touchdowns and Tony Canadeo added the other on a short line plunge.

The Cleveland Rams, who a week ago defeated Pittsburgh, 17 to 14, in the only other league game played thus far, have a busy week ahead of them. Dutch Clark's air-minded machine plays the Chicago Cardinals at Comiskey park Tuesday night and meets Green Bay at Milwaukee next Sunday, when Philadelphia also plays at Pittsburgh and Detroit at Brooklyn.

At this stage of the program, Bob Hope and Jerry Colonna, two of radio's outstanding comedians and both motion picture stars, arrived from the Dixon Municipal Airport, having flown to Dixon from Chicago. Again the crowd burst into applause as they recognized two of the country's greatest fun makers.

"Completely at Ease" Hope was completely at ease before the microphones and after being presented by Miss Parsons, broke into his customary bantering. He first apologized for not having been shaved before his arrival and announced that on this occasion he had arisen earlier than on any Sunday in many weeks. Hope presented his companion comedian, Jerry Colonna, who was an unannounced star who accompanied Hope, as the "care-taker of Yuhudi." Colonna continued the comedy section of the reception and closed his part by singing a verse from "On the road to Mandalay" accompanied by the band.

Expresses Appreciation Miss Parsons then expressed her appreciation to those who had made the homecoming event the fine success which it promises. Mrs. Charles R. Walgreen, for opening her beautiful estate, "Hazelwood," where the guests will stay during their Dixon visit; Mrs. Mabel Shaw, publisher of the Dixon Evening Telegraph for publicizing the occasion to President Walter C. Knack of the Dixon Chamber of Commerce for his part in arranging the program, and finally to Mayor Slothower, whom she addressed as "my old school pal."

Bob Hope brought Mrs. J. E. Reagan to the microphones and presented her as the huge crowd again broke into a lusty cheer. Mrs. Reagan acknowledged the greeting by stating:

"It is grand being back in Dixon among our good friends. I have never forgotten Dixon for a single day since leaving here not so very long ago and I want you all not to forget me Reagan."

To "Hazelwood" The guests were then whisked through the passenger station where they were placed in special cars and proceeded to the Walgreen Hazelwood estate where they will be guests throughout the two days of their stay.

Joe E. Brown, another motion picture star and radio personality, arrived in Dixon on the "Pacific Limited" at 1:37 in the afternoon and Bebe Daniels and her husband, Ben Lyon, left the "City of Denver" Sunday evening to join the other guests at Hazelwood. Harriett Parsons, daughter of Louella, received a last minute consignment at Hollywood and was unable to make the homecoming trip with her famous mother, her uncle and many other Hollywood celebrities. Miss Harriett is following her mother's footsteps as a critic and writer in the movie capital.

STAR THREE-EYE HURLER FOR DECATUR BLASTED FROM MOUND LAST NIGHT

(By The Associated Press)

Johnny Clay, whose record of 19 mound victories during the regular season was a major factor in placing Decatur in the Three Eye League Shaughnessy playoffs, got off to a poor start in the first game of the finals against Cedar Rapids last night.

The Raiders blasted Clay from the box in the first inning and after Lee Peterson finally retired the Indians, they had hung up five runs on six hits, including three for extra bases.

Peterson got into additional trouble in the second inning and was jerked in favor of Dick Hale who, after the third frame, held the invaders scoreless. But the Raiders' 8 runs proved sufficient for an 8 to 5 victory over the Commies who were helpless before the slants of Bill Schube.

Schube came to Ray Poat's rescue in the third inning, and blanked the Raiders the last six frames. The Commies scored four times in the third to add to their second inning one run. Cedar Rapids out-hit Decatur, 11 to 9. A crowd of 2,400 saw last night's encounter.

The second game of the three out of five series will be in Decatur tonight with the playoffs to be concluded in Cedar Rapids.

ly in defense of Leningrad.

The Daily Telegraph said it was reasonable to assume that the newly-arrived RAF unit was only "the advance guard of a large fighter contingent destined for the eastern front." Prime Minister Winston Churchill announced last week that hundreds of RAF fighter planes were being sent to the U. S. S. R.

Plan Street Defense With the battle of Leningrad flaming toward a climax, the Germans quoted soviet prisoners as saying that defenders of the old czarist capital were dynamiting huge blocks of buildings in the city to clear the line for artillery and machine-gun fire in a street-by-street defense.

In the skies, the Russians reported 100 planes engaged in the latest duel, with the Germans fleeing after losing 17 aircraft.

Adolf Hitler's high command declared that the encirclement of Leningrad had been "further tightened in stubborn fighting for possession of modernly constructed fortifications."

Soviet dispatches conceded the loss of several settlements on the bank of the River "T" at the approaches to the city, but said Red army troops had recaptured three of them.

"Great offensive operations in the east are progressing successfully," the German high command said. "Repeated enemy counter-attacks supported by heavy tanks collapsed."

Kiev Greatly Threatened While acknowledging a grave new threat to Kiev, the Ukraine capital, the Russians declared that Marshal Semon Timoshenko's Red armies were hurling the Germans back in a smashing counter-offensive on the central front.

Soviet troops were reported within 12 miles of burned and wrecked Smolensk, key city on the Napoleonic road to Moscow, with Russian artillery shelling German positions around it. Other Red forces were said to be fighting near Yartzevo, 27 miles northeast of Smolensk.

On the southern front, the Russians said Hitler's invasion armies north and south of Kiev were trying to meet behind the city. Only last Friday, the Russians admitted they had withdrawn from Chernigov, 8 miles north of Kiev between the Dnieper and Desna rivers.

Finns Hope for Peace In Helsinki, Vaino Tanner, minister of trade and communications and leader of the dominant Social Democratic party in Finland, declared there are "good hopes of peace in the nearest future."

He stressed that Finland was an ally of Germany "only by accident" and that Finland would fight only as long as her interests demanded.

The British had virtually no aerial activity on their home front. Only one plane was reported officially to have dropped bombs on a northeast coast town during the night, causing slight damage and some casualties.

But the week-end found British bombers ranging from Norway to the Mediterranean.

Official British accounts told of the firing and damaging of at least eight axis ships in a Mediterranean convoy, the sinking of a German supply ship off Norway and the possible bomb damaging of the German battleships Gneisenau and Scharnhorst at Brest, France.

For Germany, DNB, official news agency, said a German plane sank a steamer of 10,000-12,000 tons off the English east coast Sunday night.

gress after the tax measure and the new lease-lend appropriation are out of the way.

One major issue still remaining, however, was the administration price-fixing legislation. The house banking committee may resume consideration of that measure this week, but indications were that the group was in no hurry to report a bill to the house. Barkley said the senate would wait for the house to act first on a price control bill.

The War Today

constitute a small force as compared with the total warplanes in action along the Russo-German front, but they can be of big aid in a crisis. For instance, the Muscovites tell us today that the latest duel fought over Leningrad involved 100 planes and that the Germans fled after losing 17. Thus the wing of forty planes would represent nearly half the number engaged on both sides.

Warplanes are the greatest help which Britain can give her hard-pressed ally. One assumes that it will be available at any time now, since British Premier Churchill last week announced that hundreds of planes were being sent to Russia.

Right now is the critical time for both the nazis and the bolsheviks in the bloody battle raging along the extended front from Leningrad to the Black sea. Hitler has perhaps a fortnight of fairly good weather left in which to get himself favorably set for the winter—and the Reds are straining every nerve to prevent this.

The fuhrer can have little hope that he won't have to hold a front in Russia through the winter, but he will have maneuvered himself into such a position as to do this with the least effort if he can liquidate several difficulties. He must capture Leningrad; he must hold his line in the center opposite Moscow; Kiev, great rail center and capital of the Ukraine must be captured. The stubborn and brilliant Russian defense at Odessa and along the Dnieper must be knocked out and the German lines placed farther east.

As things now stand it is possible that the nazis will achieve a considerable portion of this program. A great deal must depend on the weather, which already is beginning to break in northern Russia. Quick arrival of further British air reinforcements might influence the position.

With so much of the strategic position in Russia confused in the minds of the general public by conflicting claims, it is natural that the question of who really is winning should be constantly at the fore. I think the answer must be at the moment that if the query relates to the European war as a whole then the Russians have advanced the allied cause immeasurably. If the question relates only to the trend of the Russo-German war, then we must say that Hitler is pushing the Reds very hard indeed.

City Clerk Happy Man—

City Clerk Wayne C. Smith is wearing a typical Joe E. Brown smile today and rightfully so. Sunday he received a long distance telephone call from his son, William Smith of Schenectady, N. Y., which tells him he had become a grandpa. A son weighing six pounds, eight ounces was born to Mr. and Mrs. William Smith at Schenectady early Sunday morning.

Circuit Court Convenes—

Judge Henry E. Wheat of Freeport presided at the opening of the September term of Lee county Circuit court today. The grand jury reported and went to the county jail where they inspected the county property, then filed their report and were excused subject to recall at the suggestion of State's Attorney Morey C. Pires. There were no cases to be investigated by the grand jury at this term. Judge Wheat will call the docket for the term Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock.

Three Week-End Alarms—

The fire department responded to three alarms over the week-end. At noon Saturday, the firemen were summoned to the L. J. Hamilton residence, 706 Jay Dee avenue, where a kerosene stove had caught fire. The blaze was extinguished with only minor damage. At 1:30 Sunday morning, a car belonging to C. Davis of this city caught fire on First street between Peoria and Hennepin avenues and was considerably damaged before the flames were extinguished. At 9:30 Sunday evening a chimney which was burning out at the Hotel Dixon resulted in an alarm but no damage resulted.

DUST FROM THE MILKY WAY

... a wild, hot wind tossed early autumn leaves into the diamond blue waters of the swimming pool at the Walgreen "Hazelwood" estate yesterday afternoon as one of Dixon's favorite sons walked over the velvet lawns and gazed through the mellow mists over the river... a river which is a part of Dutch Reagan... a river which, like himself, becomes splendid in the eyes of men just because it is natural and unassuming... it was a man in an open neck shirt and suspenders... a darn good guy who has lived up to all the expectations of his friends... and he remembers these friends... he asked about John Crabtree who had succeeded Dutch as life guard at the Lowell park beach and who is now in training at Camp Roberts, Calif. ... and he wanted to know who "the beachcomber" was who wrote that excellent story about him, in The Telegraph's souvenir edition...

... inside the lodge at "Hazelwood," George Montgomery, cowboy star, was saying "This estate is the kind of place a man dreams about but so seldom has. It is the finest place I have ever been... I'd like to spend not just days here... but years."

... Montgomery's visit to Dixon represents his first trip into this neck of the woods and it is as far east as the Montana cowboy star has ever been... "It's so beautiful and green," he said, "somehow I had expected different weather" and this was interpreted to mean that the fake summer heat was a surprise to him...

... down on the lawn Montgomery posed for cameramen, with Mrs. Charles R. Walgreen, who was wearing a garden-er's outfit, the very nature of which put her guests completely at ease... her unpretentious manner gave an air of informality and peace to the visiting movie people who face a grueling program before they depart...

... from a balcony suite in the lodge, Bob Hope leaned out of the window to exchange greetings with the few guests in the hall... he was overheard to remark that a profile picture taken of him yesterday was certain to add at least 10 years to his looks... Columbia Broadcasting men clattered typewriters in the big hall... but everywhere else there was an air of peace and quiet amid surroundings which even a Hollywood set designer could not match for good taste, comfort and beauty...

Jerry Colonna and Bob Hope spent an hour at the Dorrance Thompson home last night... Bill, you know, was Bob's official chauffeur during yesterday's events... "Mickey," the Thompson bull dog took quite a fancy to the comedian and hopped right up into his lap... Bill gave Hope a tour of his room which includes one of the finest photograph gallery of motion picture stars ever assembled under one roof...

... Little Ann Rutherford, sweetheart of the younger generation, was crazy about Dixon and said she'd always wanted to live in just such a town as this or "Carvel" (town of the Andy Hardy pictures)... She added that she had never seen so many Andy Hardys in her life as she saw here...

Ben Lyon and his wife, Bebe Daniels, told interesting stories of their recent experiences in bomb-torn London... they once returned from a British Broadcasting Company show to find the street in front of their house torn with a bomb crater and the houses next door were ruined...

Joe E. Brown also spent some time in London during the war... Miss Lou Woods of Chicago, a friend of Bob Hope, arrived yesterday and according to latest rumors she and George Montgomery were getting along famously... the two had met through fan letters... and through a photograph she had enclosed, Montgomery was able to spot her amid the crowd at the Loveland Community House...

Montgomery and Mrs. Charles R. Walgreen were scheduled to play golf this morning at the Country club... Bob Hope autographed a big picture for Bill Thompson with the following: "To Bill, Thanks for the ride" and Jerry Colonna came along to add his scrawl to the same photo which read, "This is Colonna at the age of six months"...

Hope and Colonna will be in Milwaukee for the American Legion convention tonight and the Thompsons and their guest, Mrs. I. B. Countryman, got a big bang out of hearing a preview of his jokes for tonight... Colonna and Hope leave for Philadelphia tonight for another broadcast... Bill Thompson was to take Hope to the airport at 10 o'clock this morning...

The Paramount comedian declared that he had a wonderful time here... that it was unlike any other world premiere he had attended... that here they had been permitted to relax a little and their time was well arranged... Hope said of Dorrance Thompson, "put a tuxedo on him and we'll get him in Hollywood—he's one of the handsomest elderly men I have ever seen..."

FINDS CARRIER PIGEON

Gerald Dunn living south of Dixon about 17 miles, found a carrier pigeon on his father's farm Saturday afternoon, which apparently had become exhausted in flight. On one leg was a rubber band marked 042 and on the right leg was an aluminum band marked AU-E2807.

GOLF MATCH DOESN'T COME OFF

Because comedian Bob Hope was too exhausted after a long session of appearances and an all-night trip by plane, the scheduled golf match with Em Rorer was called off by the Paramount film star went to bed to rest up for the broadcasts at night.

RETURNS FROM VACATION

George Covert has just returned from a vacation trip which included a St. Louis Cardinals ball game. George says he believes the Cards would have any trouble clinching the pennant if they had Slaughter and Terry back—but as it is the St. Louis fans are a little dubious.

SOFTBALL TOMORROW NIGHT

Dixon One-Stop girls' softball team will play the Ottawa girls at Ashton tomorrow night in a benefit game. The preliminary game will be between the Ashton boys and a team of boys from Rochelle.

SHAPE OF THINGS TO COME

Belvidere's football squad which will play here on Oct. 7 was nipped 7 to 0 in the opener at Geneva Saturday afternoon. The Belvidere underclassmen lost the preliminary tilt, 18 to 6. Belvidere is playing under its new coach, Dean Carter, and a squad of 36 boys made the trip. Princeton Dixon's foe here on Oct. 31, defeated Walnut 25 to 6 in the opener this past week-end, thus carrying out predictions that the Tigers are shapely for this season and are the boys to be watched in the North Central conference. Hansen made two touchdowns and B. Frantzen and Young each made one for the winners. Peach made the score for the Walnut visitors.

ITS ROCKFORD HERE ON FRIDAY

After Oregon comes Rockford East for Coach C. B. Lindell's Dixon Ducks and next Friday night the local team will be hosts to the "big town" squads in two games here, the first starting at 6:30. Rockford East's invasion of Dixon will be the first time a Rockford grid squad has performed on a local field—at least so far as we know.

RIDING IN THE RIVER

If there's anything new under the sun in trail riding, the equestrians of this neck of the woods will discover it. Yesterday a group of Dixon riders participated in the Fox River Valley ride from Oswego and in the morning they rode over 10 to 12 miles along the river. In the afternoon they took to the river with their horses and rode down stream for about three hours. The water was belly-deep on the horses and the riders got soaked but enjoyed the merry novelty of the ride. Those from Dixon who rode on land and water were: Mrs. Charles Dickey, Joan Killian, Clarence Myers and Arthur Keithahn.

CLASS C GOLF CHAMPION

Elmer Meyers won the Class C championship of Plum Hollow Country club yesterday by defeating Clarence Strub, 3 up and 2 to go. The event wound up the current tournament at the club. In the morning about 40 members of the club gathered around while Frank L. Randall made the trophy presentations to the 36 prize winners in the three flights of the tournament.

STOUT-HEARTED BROOKS, CARDS BATTLE ONWARD

Each Team Wins Its Game in Spite of Trailing

BY GAYLE TALBOT

Associated Press Sports Writer. It will be some time before baseball produces two gamblers more stout-hearted teams than the pair now locked in battle for the National League championship. The fact is emphasized anew daily as the Dodgers and the Cards go into the final furious fortnight.

If either of them intended to crack, yesterday offered a beautiful opportunity. Both contenders ran into superb pitching and both trailed at one time or another, but when the dust settled last night they both had won their games and still were breathing defiance.

The St. Louis gang perhaps displayed the sterner fighting qualities in overcoming the Giants twice by scores of 1 to 0 and 6 to 5, the second tussle going 10 innings. Carl Hubbell, still a master craftsman, held them to three hits in the opener, but they put one with a Giant misplay to score and give the veteran Lon Warneke a richly deserved triumph.

Trail By Two Runs

They went into the ninth frame of the second game trailing by two runs, but they knocked Cliff Melton from the hill to tie it up and then won out in the 10th on an error by Dick Bartell with the sacks filled.

The double win enabled the Cards to reduce Brooklyn's lead to a game and a half, despite the Dodgers' hard-earned 7 to 5 victory over Cincinnati. The margin is certain to be changed one way or the other today, as the Cards take a rest while the Dodgers have another shot at the Reds.

Billy Herman, veteran Brooklyn second sacker, knocked in the winning run for the second straight day when he poled a homer off Bucky Walters in the ninth to break a 5-5 deadlock. The previous day he had beaten the cards 1 to 0 with a heroic double off Mort Cooper. And it is reported on good authority that the Dodgers paid only some such trifling sum as $12,000 to Herman when they got him from the Chicago Cubs early in the season.

Almost a Costly Defeat

The defeat nearly cost Cincinnati third place in the National Pittsburgh won its first game with the Phils 2 to 1 and appeared to have the nightcap sewed up until the Phils suddenly blasted loose for five runs in the ninth inning to win it 6 to 3. A twin victory would have placed the Corsairs third, which is a nice spot to be in with the World Series split coming up.

The Chicago Cubs split a pair with the Boston Braves. The Braves blasted 15 hits to take the first 6 to 3, but absorbed a 10-3 lashing in the second, mostly at the hands of Chicago's rookie pitcher, Johnny Schmitz.

Young Sid Hudson turned in the day's feature piece in the American League, yielding only four hits in pitching Washington to a 2-0 shutout over Detroit. He scored both runs, furthermore.

Indians Win Second

The Cleveland Indians hopped on Marv Breuer for five runs in the eighth inning to win the second game from the Yanks 5 to 2, after losing the first 6 to 3 on George Selkirk's homer with two aboard.

The Boston Red Sox virtually clinched second place by taking a pair from Chicago, 9-2 and 5-2, and their great first baseman, Jimmy Foxx, carved himself a hummy of baseball record by running his runs-batted-in total to 102. It marks the 13th year he has passed 100, tying the record held by the late Lou Gehrig.

St. Louis shoved the Philadelphia Athletics into the cellar by sweeping a doubleheader 7-2 and 5-1.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

(By The Associated Press)

Billy Herman, Dodgers—His ninth inning homer provided the winning run over Cincinnati.

Lon Warneke, and Coaker Trip-tit, Cardinals—Warneke pitched 1 to 0 shutout victory over Giants to keep Cards in race. Trip-tit made four hits in second game and scored winning run.

Johnny Schmitz, Cubs—Making first big league start, he held the Braves to five hits and clouted three singles.

Bobby Bragan, Phillies—His single with bases loaded in ninth beat Pittsburgh, 6 to 3, to earn even break in doubleheader.

Jimmy Foxx, Red Sox—Ran his runs-batted-in total to 102, marking 13th consecutive year he has knocked in more than 100 runs and tying record held by late Lou Gehrig in Boston's double win over White Sox.

Sid Hudson, Senators—Held Detroit to four hits and scored both Braves' runs in 2 to 0 triumph.

Bob Munchief and Denny Galehouse, Browns—Pitched their team out of American League cellar with double victory over the Athletics.

George Selkirk, Yankees—Provided able substitute for Charley Keller as he smacked a homer with two on to gain split in twin bill with Cleveland.

Hotel Nachusa Veranda is Scene of Gay Brilliance During 15-Minute Program

Chicago Herald-American Sports Editor Is Among Those Presented on Louella Parsons' Day Eve Broadcast

The stars were bright over the Rock River valley last night as a celestial parade of film folk touched the warm September night with magic and turned the veranda of the historic old Nachusa hotel into a firmament of brilliance during the "Man on the Street" broadcast over Chicago radio station WBBM.

On the streets gayly decorated with Louella Parsons-Ronald Reagan homecoming banners, thousands of people from Dixon and neighboring towns cheered the honored guests and their movie colony friends during the John Herring broadcast.

The old hotel, where Abraham Lincoln stayed, was a focus point during the fifteen-minute program conducted by the veteran sports and news commentator.

Long before the broadcast began, people gathered to await the arrival of Miss Parsons and the movie stars. Loud cheers went up for the famous critic and columnist, "Dutch" and the others as they appeared in the police-escorted open cars. Movie stars learned the thrill of visible and audible audiences and their reception must have been most gratifying.

Dutch Is "MC"

John Herrington opened the broadcast with the introduction of Dutch Reagan who acted as master of ceremonies.

The former Dixon youth declared that the ceremonies of the day were like a dream come true. In answer to Herrington's question, "How does your hometown seem to you after Hollywood?" Dutch declared, "Good is the word I could use. I like Hollywood, its weather—(It's the only place in the world where you can go to sleep under a rose bush and freeze to death)—but there's nothing like the beauty of the Rock River valley and in the center of all is Dixon."

Reagan introduced Miss Parsons, Hearst newspaper columnist and movie critic, and declared that the two of them often meet in Hollywood to talk of their hometown.

Miss Parsons, throwing kisses to the crowd, declared that what she felt for her hometown could not be put in words. "Dixon," she said, "is the very best place in the world and I'd rather come from here than anywhere else."

She praised the Chamber of Commerce for the reception here and regretted only that the short visit did not permit her to see more of her friends. "Dixon is more beautiful than ever," she concluded, and the Loveland Community House is wonderful. I shall tell them in Hollywood that they better move to Dixon."

Jerry Colonna, film comic and side-kick of Bob Hope was introduced by Reagan. Colonna with eyes popping out over a spinach-like mustache, cried: "Greetings, Dixon, What's mine?" that needs fixing." A double-talk poem—written especially for the city—was Colonna's comic contribution to the program.

Bob Hope

Bob Hope, popular radio and screen comedian who has contributed his services generously in charity events all over the nation, was greeted with a big ovation. Hope, who seemed to be enjoying himself, was rapid-fire with repartee which had the crowd completely won over from the start. Bob's "Hopeisms" which require his special technique to be effective, declared that the streamline train on which he arrived was so fast that it could pass everything but Mrs. Roosevelt and that it was the grandest train he had ridden—under!

Bebe Daniels and Ben Lyon, who are Mr. and Mrs. Ben Lyon in private life, were introduced and spoke briefly of their pleasure in the festivities. Mr. and Mrs. Lyon, long favorites of movie-goers, have just returned to the United States after doing radio work in London.

Joe E. Brown

Joe E. Brown, the "Elmer the Great" of movieland and of the nation's outstanding lovers of sports, and Ed Cochran, sports editor of the Chicago Herald and American, "Interviewed" each other as old friends. Each declared the pleasure of being in the Louella Parsons' day celebration.

Concluding the program William V. Slothower of Dixon, extended to the visible and radio audience and cordial welcome to the city tomorrow when the homecoming celebration will reach its climax with a parade, banquet, world premiere of the movie "International Squadron" and the Hollywood Ball at the Armory.

GREEN WAVE ROLLS ON

New Orleans—Tulane has registered the most first downs in the Southeastern Conference for the last four seasons. The Green Wave's total of 148 in 1940 bettered by one their previous high.

One person is killed by an accident every 5 1-3 minutes.

Ronald Reagan Visits Lowell Park's Beach

Ronald "Dutch" Reagan took time out yesterday afternoon to visit the scenes of his boyhood activities at the beach at Lowell park, where a crowd of several thousand people (not a single swimmer) thronged to get a glimpse of the life guard who served there for seven seasons.

The highlight of the afternoon was the presentation of a handsome electric clock to Reagan on the back of which was inscribed: "To Ronald 'Dutch' Reagan from 77 grateful people whose lives he saved at Lowell park beach, Dixon, Ill."

Reagan spoke briefly through a public address system as the crowd cheered his arrival.

"I couldn't come back to Dixon without coming back to Lowell park. I do miss the old log with the 77 notches, but I can assure you that I still have the old bathing suit with 'life guard' across the front of it. It has a few moth holes in it and I don't believe that I can squeeze into it in some places."

Mrs. Reagan, mother of "Dutch", accompanied him to the park and both were greeted and visited with numerous old acquaintances. Among other mementoes of his visit to Lowell park, Reagan was presented with a genuine Missouri corn cob pipe by Dwight Thompson.

Autograph hunters kept the Warner Bros. star busy from the time his open car stopped in front of the bath house until he again stepped into the machine to return to "Hazelwood" where all of the guest stars are guests during their two-day visit.

Connie Mack Says Yanks Will Win World Series

Philadelphia, Sept. 15.—(AP)—Connie Mack doesn't care whether the Dodgers or the Cardinals win the National League pennant—he picks the Yankees to win the World Series.

What's more, the alert 78-year-old manager of the Athletics thinks the series will last only five or six games.

Baseball's grand old gentleman who was a veteran before most of the present day ball players were born, added to his fame when he went out on a limb and predicted the collapse of the Yanks in 1940 after they had won four straight pennants and World Series.

The Yanks walloped Cincinnati four straight in the series of 1939, but was in that very series, Connie said, that he "saw something" that indicated the Yanks' downfall.

During the off season last winter Mack asserted the Yanks were the team to beat for the 1941 pennant. Hence his predictions carry more than added weight.

"Yes I think it will be the Yankees," he declared. "Who can beat them? They have such power and pitching."

LLOYD MANGRUM HAS CONFIDENCE ENOUGH TO WIN GOLF TOURNEY

Atlantic City, N. J., Sept. 15.—(AP)—If confidence and a few good strokes are all that is needed to win golf tournaments, you'll probably be hearing a lot from now on about Lloyd Mangrum, the little lightweight from Monterey Park, Calif.

The 137-pound slugger came to Atlantic City the other day with the prediction that he'd walk off with top money in the first $5,000 greater Atlantic City open tournament. He hit 1,000 in the prediction league, taking the lead with a seven-under-par 65 on the first round and never going above par as he wound up with 69-69—72 for a total of 275.

Ben Hogan, the year's leading money winner, and Vic Ghezzi tied for second with 281's. Hogan, who finished in the money for the 56th consecutive tournament, brought his season's winnings to $15,983, some $5,000 more than Sam Snead.

LEW JENKINS INJURED WHEN MOTORCYCLE SKIDS

Little Ferry, N. J., Sept. 15.—(AP)—Lew Jenkins, lightweight boxing champion, was injured today when his motorcycle slid off the roadway at a traffic circle.

Jenkins, training at Pompton Lakes for a non-title fight October 6 in New York with Walterweight Titleholder Freddie Cochran, was treated at Hackensack hospital for contusions and abrasions. His condition was described as not serious by hospital attaches.

TARHEELS HOME-GROWN

Chapel Hill, N. C.—North Carolina's football squad is predominantly a Tarheel production, drawing 30 from the state.

There were 6,996,789 farms in the U. S. in 1940 compared with 6,812,350 in 1935 and 6,288,648 during 1930.

RUMOR HAS IT THAT PHILLIES MAY BE BOUGHT

Philadelphia Democratic Leader Is Said To Be Interested

BY SID FEDER

New York, Sept. 15.—(AP)—Although no one involved will make a peep about it yet, it was learned today that a group of men headed by John B. Kelly, former world champion oarsman, is interested in buying the Philadelphia Phillies.

The story is that Kelly, a Philadelphia Democratic leader, for years and of late national chairman for civilian physical training, and Jim Peterson, who pitched for Connie Mack's Philadelphia Athletics about a decade ago, are the guiding lights in the attempt to purchase the National League's chronic cellar dwellers.

Now, while selling the Phillies has been a bit of baseball by-play for years and they haven't really been sold yet, the sources of the present information are two friends of Peterson and Kelly. They say the group, which includes three other men, is ready to go as high as $500,000, to include any debts the club may have, and that a $300,000 fee already has been put before Gerry Nugent, the Phils' president.

Nothing But Denials

However, from Nugent on the side and Kelly and Peterson on the other, all the way up—or down—to National League President Ford Frick, who figures he "would get wind of it if it was something doing," there comes nothing but denials.

The Phils haven't been doing any too well at the box office for the past couple of years, and rumors of sale of the club have come as often as the outfit has finished in the National League cellar. Early this summer there was a whisper that Branch Rickey was leaving the St. Louis Cardinals' organization and would buy out Nugent. But this one finally was tracked down as a vision some one dreamed up.

The mutual friends who told this corner the current story explained that if the deal goes through, Peterson is slated for the spot as business manager of the club. He now is in the advertising business in Philadelphia. The group involved is supposed to be ready to spend a million in buying the club and building it up to something resembling pennant proportions.

Sports Roundup

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.

New York, Sept. 15.—(The Special News Service)—Monday Matinee: Most surprising news of the week-end was that Hicking Whirlaway took up at Narragansett, and it's really got the horse players wondering... Whirlaway hasn't really been out of training since the start of his two-year-old season and that's enough to see any other horse down, but only a couple of days ago Ben Jones said his horse was taking on weight with all that hard work.

Isn't it about time for the Dodgers to begin asking if the Giants still are in the league?... They didn't help Brooklyn a bit by losing that doubleheader to the Cards yesterday... Betty Hicks Nevell, the new women's golf champion, says she'll listen to pro offers because "My husband and I need a stake to start our married life"... From tournament winner to bread winner, huh?... At that, some of the folks who back the big pro tournaments might do worse than to get up one for the gals. With Betty, Patty Berg and Helen Hicks Harb they'd have plenty to start with, and a lot of the other girls who have to earn their own way might easily be persuaded to turn pro.

Today's Guest Star—

Don Pierce, Topeka (Kans.) State Journal: "Only choice grid timber we ever heard of escaping the cornhusker clutches at Lincoln are Tom Brock, sophomore Notre Dame center, and Bob Robertson, U. S. C. half, both of whom are touted to be two of the top football twinklers of the nation this year. When they roll, the chagrin in Lincoln should be as deep as last year's cornhusker line replacements."

Quote, unquote—

Ray Daughters, the famous Seattle swimming coach: "What do I look for in a young candidate? If the youngster has initiative to

They'll Do It Every Time

Studio Issues Synopsis of "Black Widow", Jane Wyman's New Picture

Warner Bros. Studio, home lot of Actress Jane Wyman, has issued a synopsis of "The Black Widow", the latest picture in which the blonde star is appearing. Director of Publicity Robert S. Taplinger has made public the following summary of the new motion picture:

Boys will be boys. And there was no gainsaying that Pete's pals weren't upholding tradition. The occasion: A bachelor dinner for their to-be-wed-tomorrow sidekick, Peter DeHaven, Third (Jeffrey Lynn), young wealthy, handsome.

DeHaven, just to prove that he is still one of the boys despite his marital intentions, overdoes it to the extent of passing out.

Medical Student "Doc" George Appleby (Herbert Anderson), potted as the rest, comes up with this brilliant idea: "Let's take Pete over to the college and leave him on a slab in the dissecting room!"

Chorus: "Let's go!" How were they to know what fantastic, fearful consequences were to be in store for DeHaven? Next to the medical building, which now houses DeHaven, stands the home of Professor Shotesbury (Edward Everett Horton), a stay-uplate who delves in mysterious concoctions and wild experiments in the wee weird hours. At the moment, flanked by test tubes and endless chemical paraphernalia, Professor Shotesbury is bringing to a glorious climax—you can tell by the exalted expression on his face—the most momentous discovery in history: a serum to bring the dead back to life!

What's more, it works. At least, it had worked on Charlie, Willie's (Willie Best) pet monkey. Now he needed a dead human to complete the experiment.

The dissecting room and its contents next door flash to his mind. With Willie's frightened aid, he carries DeHaven's unconscious form back to his laboratory. An injection of serum, and DeHaven is jarred out of his alcohol stupor. "I've done it!" cries the professor.

"I want a drink," says Peter. The trembling Willie gives DeHaven a glass of brandy. Then suddenly the weirdest thing happens—DeHaven's hands and face fade into nothingness! Only his clothes remain visible.

The bewildered professor touches Peter's arm. "Living, breathing, solid—and invisible!" he gasps.

He scuttles to Charlie's cage. It is apparently empty, but the bar is swinging back and forth and there is much chattering. Charlie is invisible too!

What a kettle of fish! And Peter to be married to Joan Lanceford (Marguerite Chapman) at 10 o'clock.

At that moment, Professor Shotesbury's daughter, Lynn (Jane Wyman), blonde and gorgeous, enters the laboratory. It is love at first sight—with Peter, at least; he can see Lynn. Although startled by the headless, handless figure, Lynn admires the cut of Peter's clothes. Just like that.

Now we really have some problems to solve: Peter has to square things with his bride-to-be so he can marry Lynn; the professor has the little item of brewing an antidote to restore Peter's pigments... and Charlie's.

Peter, sans clothes so he will be entirely invisible, dashes over to Joan's house, where he overhears that Joan is really in love with another man, Robert Struck (Craig Stevens), and is only marrying him to please her mother and restore the family's deflated finances. So that problem can be easily solved when the time comes.

The professor, however, hasn't had such good luck. In an effort to secure help from his colleagues in finding an antidote, he is thought crazy and placed in a sanitarium. Lynn, desperate, injects herself with the serum. Now invisible she speeds to his rescue with a hypodermic full of serum. The professor makes himself invisible, too, and they escape.

War Casts Shadow Over Great Harbor in New York City

Goods Flowing Through Port in Almost Unending Stream

New York.—(The Special News Service)—Along the sprawling waterfront of the largest and busiest port in the world, men are working around the clock feeding Britain's sinews of war with a steady stream of food, materials and supplies.

Day and night an unending tide of goods flows into the great New York shipping terminals by train and truck to be hustled swiftly into waiting ships, somber in their dark war paint.

Scabrous freighters riding low in the waters under heavy loads slip past the Statue of Liberty on their way to join convoys for the perilous journey across the Atlantic. Their hulks become mere wisps of smoke on the horizon while watchers wonder if the ships with the toy-like anti-submarine guns canter and such—working out a formula to restore the pigments of the skin. He tries it on Charlie. It works! He tries it on himself. It works again! Next Lynn is brought back in focus.

Now to find Peter and restore him to sight. But no Peter. He has been busy getting himself into all kinds of mischief now that he is invisible.

The police catch up with the professor, who is put on trial for insanity. Of course, his fantastic tale of making people disappear is believed by no one until Peter walks unseen into the court room, injects himself with the antidote and becomes visible once again. After putting on the judge's gown, of course.

"Peter! My darling!" exclaims Lynn.

They embrace.

Science Finds New Drugless Treatment for Migraine Victims

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
New York.—(The Special News Service)—At least two-thirds of those who suffer with migraine headache can look forward to satisfaction in a new treatment which has more success than drugs.

Migraine is the commonest complaint of mankind. It used to be called sick headache. These headaches are periodic, usually start on one side of the head and may become general. Occasionally the pain spreads to face or neck. There may also be nausea and other discomforts.

The new treatment comes from discovery that migraine to a large extent is literally a matter of personality and how it is used. Migraine mostly affects perfectionists, the hard-driving, ambitious type of person.

Remedy Is Relaxation
The remedy is in training to relax. The results of a test in a group of migraine victims are told in the archives of neurology and other publications by Harold G. Wolff, M. D., of the New York hospital and Cornell medical college.

In no case did these headaches entirely disappear. But many reduced the attacks from once every two weeks, to three or four a year. Others had fewer attacks and less pain.

Those who got better altered some of their personality traits. But a few preferred to keep the headaches rather than change any of their perfectionist ways.

Each problem was different. Many migraine patients, it was found, have difficulty in falling in love because of inherent caution, anxiety and unwillingness to give themselves up to anyone. Unhappiness in married relations was one of the prominent sources of migraine.

Useful Remedies
Among the useful remedies were lovemaking, music, literature, plastic arts, games or interesting diversions of any sort, and holidays not lasting more than a day or so at a time.

The reason for short holidays is the tendency of the migraine type of person to get too strenuous, even in recreation, and aggravate instead of relieve his trouble. In all games the same rule of not overdoing applied. Even music and literature could be worked too hard.

Prolonged warm baths and occasional sedatives were used at the start of the treatment. But mostly the remedy was re-education in the method of attacking problems.

Colorado's fourth congressional district is the loftiest in the United States. There are about 50 mountain peaks in the region.

mounted astern will reach their destination past undersea raiders and Nazi bombers.

To the casual visitor, there's little of the wartime drama to be seen on the harbor's surface, set against a background of towering skyscrapers.

The old Battery Park, looking out to the sealanes from the lower tip of Manhattan, still attracts the tourists and shirt-sleeved city dwellers enjoying the cool breeze that sweeps in steadily.

Chattering crowds stream into the aquariums to stare at strange creatures of the sea which stare right back at them. Soldiers, sailors, laborers, clerks, harassed mammas and their brood of children, panhandlers, tired old men and battered bums lol in the shade of the few trees and on the benches.

The little Statue of Liberty boat, loaded with sightseers, chuffs importantly away on its journey to Bedloe's Island where the lady with the light holds her torch aloft like a benediction.

Another Scene
It's quite another scene back where the stevedores hustle the freight and the giant cranes swing tons of munitions, planes, food and other materials aboard ships.

Railroads are unloading approximately 60,000 tons of materials daily just for the lighters which transport freight about the harbor. Informed sources say this tonnage is greater than in the peak year of 1918 when there was another war in Europe.

Not all the cargoes, of course, are going to England although the bulk is headed for British empire ports. Much of it is destined for the United States' expanding markets in South Africa and South America, markets once served by the belligerent nations.

Despite the increased burden there is no bottleneck at the New York harbor. The flow of goods has been smooth and steady, port officials say.

This functional success has been achieved by stepping up the harbor's tempo. Importers' "free time", the period in which freight may remain at piers without charge, has been cut from ten to five days. Exporters still have fifteen days "free time" at the piers.

Coast guard vessels examine closely each ship entering or leaving the port, and ships of belligerent nations must fly secret code flags of identification. If they carry offensive weapons, the navy takes charge. The coast guard also superintends loading of munitions from barges to ships at Bayonne, N. J. terminal and Gravesend Bay.

The harbor's 770 miles of docks are patrolled by the coast guard while squads of FBI men, and army and navy agents guard against espionage and sabotage ashore.

But few see this hidden activity. To the untrained eye there is little evidence that the war in Europe has cast its shadow across the great harbor of New York.

Styles for Bicycles Dictated by Fashion
Following closely upon the advent of the "safety" bicycle, and its use by girls and women, came dictates by fashion experts regarding the proper garb to be worn, according to the Illinois Writers' Project, WPA.

Skirts were permissible, and for them a special type of open frame bicycle was constructed. Careful instructions were printed widely, as to the right way to mount the bicycle, with the positive injunction: "Always remembering to be deliberate and to take plenty of time to arrange her skirts!"

But bloomers! That was where the fashion dictator waxed eloquent and enthusiastic. One newspaper account in 1895, in a downstate paper, quotes the ecstatic dictator thus:

"The diamond frame mount is grace itself. To see a woman in a well fitting bloomer suit mount from the step with one skip is a charming sight."

New Morning Paper in Chicago Now Probable
New York, Sept. 15.—(AP)—Definite announcement probably will be made within 10 days, says New York publisher Marshall Field, concerning establishment of a new morning newspaper in Chicago.

Field, the largest stockholder in P.M. New York's youngest paper, said last night the paper would be organized by himself and friends, including Silliman Evans, president of the Nashville (Tenn.) Tennessean.

"We have been working on the proposition for some time," Field said, adding that there would be no consolidation or purchase involved in the deal.

"The paper would be open-minded, with no particular policy as far as I know," Field commented. "Of course, you understand I am pro-administration and have consistently supported the president."

Field is a grandson of the late Chicago merchant.
